WE ARE EXTREMELY PLEASED to offer Part 1 of the RENATO BENDAÑA collection of Latin American coinage. As you consider the items offered within these pages, please reflect upon the exceedingly large number of truly scarce and rare types and dates that are included. Upon careful consideration of other notable offerings of this series during the past decade, we are still unable to recall any other catalogue that had so many desirable pieces of these series presented together. It is our hope that this volume will prove to be worthy of recognition as a reference catalogue long after its import as a fixed price list wanes.

THE SECOND AND THIRD PARTS of this extensive South and Central American collection will be presented in April and May of this year. The crown coinage includes many dates which we have not offered since the Rufino Alvarez collection was presented in our list #10 in 1974. The Central American section includes a number of very scarce items, several of which are the first we have owned. Overall, the Central American selection should be the most interesting that we have ever presented.

This catalogue, in combination with the Central American and the crown lists, should form a reference worthy of a place on your library shelf. The three catalogues will be a source of much pleasure for many collectors of these series. Concurrently, however, many dedicated collectors will desire to own far more of these pieces than they can comfortably afford. We understand this predicament and stand ready and willing to help you arrange financing over a three to six month period.

WANT LISTS covering any dates or types not included herein are invited.

THE COLLECTING OF POTOSI COB COINAGE is a challenging task that should be undertaken only by studious, industrious and persevering numismatists. Correct attribution requires close scrutiny of these odd-shaped, often-oxidized coins—coins which were often only partially struck originally. With all its difficulties and frustrations, the collecting of cob coinage will bring ultimate intellectual gratification and real excitement to anyone who masters this formidable subject.
